The body of the church was filled to its utmost capacity, while the galery was occupied by bright and happy with the regular choir of the church Mr. Thomas J. Adams, and Mr. Robert E Hofer sang the national songs, the choral orchestra furnishing the music. The clear fresh voices of the children rang forth in sweet melodies until the walls of the church themselves fairly rang with the chorus of American national songs.

Seated on the platform of the church were Hon. Joseph B. Sargent, who presided over the assembly, Hon. N. D. Sperry, Hon. Rafus S. Pickett, and Superintendent of Schools Virgil G. Curtis, all of whom made addressed and the second sec dresses, and the pastor. Rev. Mr. Squires. With Snowballs by Street Gamins. Though a large proportion of the stu dent world left town Saturday to spend Washington's birthday at home, still there was a sufficient contingency of sopho mores and freshmen left to celebrate yesterday in a mild manner. The day was delightful one, considered from a weather standpoint, and the holiday proved very town by parading up and down the streets, that increased his stature several inches. And what hats! That well known refrain. "Where did you, etc.," could have been appropriately applied to each individual. There were silk hats, all battered and out of shape, which probably did their first service at an indefinite period before the Pilgrim fathers landed on our bleak shores, and every succeeding style down to the Knov and Dunlan latest style down to the Knox and Dunlap lates was represented as well, though these last named were in the great minority. They attracted no little attention, and were particularly fascinating to the street urc who quickly sized up the wearers as their game. These little human gnats, swarm-ing about with innumerable forces confor the so-called rerocious "sopns," and a retreat en masse back to the campus was deemed advisable. This must have seemed to them, who are now in the midst of the classics, not a little like the difficulties which the ancient legions in days of yore experienced with the Parthians, who shot

It was a weary and half-disgusted party of students that reached the friendly shelter afforded around on the other side of Lawrence hall, and more than one man felt kicking himself whose enthusiasm had overcome his discretion to the degree that instead of wearing some old thing for burlesque effect he had appeared in his bright, new and sunshiny tile, intended rather to win admiration from "my lady fair" than to become a target for small boy otoriety, but they did take considerable pride in swinging those new canes, especially the Sheff. men. The uninitiated men at a glance could distinguish the latter from their academic brethren by that superior twirl which they gave that six dollar and a half class stick of ugly degice.

HYPERION THRATER. The fourth and last concert of the seaso by the Boston Symphony orchestra was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed. The orchestral selections consisted of Weber's "Jubilee" overture, Wagner's "Waldweben" from "Siegfried," and Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony. Miss Fanny Bloomfield-Zeisler was the soloist of the evening and gave a brilliant rendition of Chopin's pianoforte concerto in F minor. It was a concert in every way worthy of America's best musical organization. Herr Nikisch is a favorite, and he and his orchestra will always find appreciative audiences in our city. Such music as he has furnished us this season has never heave squaled in its selection and university was chosen temporary chairman and W. K. Stetson of the local free pub has never been equaled in its selection and rendition. The symphony concerts have now become an annual treat to our music-

The sale of seats for the public rehearsa of the Oratorio of the Redemption next Friday afternoon will begin at 9 o'clock Friday afternoon will begin at 9 o'clock to-day at the Hyperion. The rehearsal will include all of the soloists, the orchestra, organist and the chorus, and will be exceedingly interesting. A big rush for seats is expected, as hundreds of people have been unable to get seats for the evening performance. Orders for 150 seats have been received from out of town, but the sale at the box office to-day takes the first chance. The librettos will be ready at the music stores to-merrow noon.
